Course Summary

Description

In broad terms, Criminology is concerned with understanding crime, deviance and criminal justice. Criminologists ask, for example, why it is that some people are more likely to be victims or perpetrators of crime than others; how crime can be effectively controlled and prevented; and even how we come to define particular activities as “criminal” or not in the first place.

Overall, the course progressively develops your critical understanding of Criminology through the examination of key concepts and theories as well as substantive issues related to crime and criminal justice. Alongside this, the course teaches critical analytical and methodological skills to equip students with the practical expertise required to engage with and carry out Criminological research. As such, by the end of the course, graduates will be able to draw upon conceptual and empirical material to critically analyse complex Criminological issues in a scholarly fashion.

The degree is based on a modular structure, with students required to take the equivalent of six modules (some of which may be ‘double modules’) within each year of study. Over the course of the degree, modules become increasingly focused on specialist topics and issues, with the chance to undertake a Sociological research project on a specific topic of substantive interest in the final year of study.

Year 1

Students will develop knowledge and understanding of foundational concepts and issues related to crime, criminal justice and Criminological research, as a platform for study in years 2 and 3.

Compulsory Modules:

- Criminal Justice Landscape
- Critical Scholarship in the Social Sciences
- Classical Sociological Theory
- Introduction to Criminological Theory
- Social Research Methods

Optional Module:

- Any open module to the value of 20 credits offered elsewhere in the Department or by another Board of Studies, including appropriate credit-bearing language modules offered by the Centre for Foreign Language Study)

Year 2

Students will develop their understanding of key issues in Criminological theory and research building on work completed during the first year of study. Students will also begin to study in detail various topics of substantive Criminological relevance that relate to the Department’s major research themes.

Compulsory Modules:

- Contemporary Criminological Theory
- Research Methods in Action

Optional Modules Include:

- Communities and Social Justice
- Identity and Transgression
- Modern and Contemporary Sociological Theory
- Police and Policing
- Sociological Approaches to Violence and Abuse
- Sociology of Education
- Any open module to the value of 20 credits offered elsewhere in the Department or by another Board of Studies, including appropriate credit-bearing language modules offered by the Centre for Foreign Language Study)

Year 3

In the final year of study, students focus on detailed critical analysis and evaluation of salient social issues drawing upon conceptual knowledge and understanding developed over the previous two years of study. Students will also undertake an independent research project related to a specific area of Sociological interest through their dissertation thesis.

Compulsory Module:

- Dissertation

Optional Modules Include:

- Community Placement
- Crime, Justice and the Sex Industry
- Cyberculture and Cybercrime
- Drugs, Crime and Society
- Social Policy
- Sociology of Forensic Science and Criminal Investigation
- Sociology of Health and Medicine
- Sociology of Work and Professions
- Rural Studies and Social Policy
- Young People, Crime and Justice
- Any open module to the value of 20 credits offered elsewhere in the Department or by another Board of Studies, including appropriate credit-bearing language modules offered by the Centre for Foreign Language Study)

Note: Every year, we review course structure and core content in light of (e.g.) external and student feedback, and will publish finalised core requirements for 2020 entry from September 2019. This means that the above should be taken as indicative of what the programme offers rather than an exact reflection as some specific details may change

You can find out more about this course by watching our film (youtu.be/0GiPyjrjkmQ).

Study Abroad

We are part of the ERASMUS programme which encourages you to study for part of your course in a university of another EU country.

We currently have links with the universities of Helsinki in Finland and Duisburg-Essen in Germany. You can also apply to the university-wide international exchange programme with universities in North America, Asia, Australia and New Zealand.

Placement Year

You may be able to take a work placement. Find out more (www.durham.ac.uk/placements/).

Admissions Process

Subject requirements, level and grade

A level offer – AAB.

BTEC Level 3 National Extended Diploma/OCR Cambridge Technical Extended Diploma – DDD.

IB Diploma score – 36 with 665 in higher level subjects.

In addition to satisfying the University's general entry requirements, please note:

- While not necessary, applicants who have studied at least one strongly essay-based subject in Further Education will enter the course in a stronger position and so preference may be given to such applicants over those who have not. A non-exhaustive list of example essay-based subjects includes: Business Studies, Criminology, English, Geography, History, Politics, Psychology, Religion/Philosophy and Sociology.
- We also welcome applications from those holding or studying for qualifications equivalent to those standard requirements, such as an Access to HE Diploma, Cambridge Pre-U Diplomas, etc. Common alternatives are outlined here (www.dur.ac.uk/study/ug/apply/entry/) but contact University Admissions for advice if you cannot find your qualifications listed
- Offers one grade down from the standard A level offer may be made to applicants who show special merit and potential in their applications, while offers up to two grades down from the standard offer will be made in line with the University's Guaranteed Contextual Offer (www.dur.ac.uk/study/ug/apply/contextualoffers/) policy.
- If you do not satisfy our general entry requirements, the Foundation Programme (www.dur.ac.uk/foundation.programme/) offers multidisciplinary degrees to prepare you for a range of specified degree courses
- If you are an international student who does not meet the requirements for direct entry to this degree, you may be eligible to take an International Foundation Year pathway programme at the Durham University International Study Centre (www.durhamisc.com/?ch=uniweb&cc=signposting&cid=uniweb&utm\_source=signposting&utm\_medium=signposting&utm\_campaign=uni)
- We are pleased to consider applications for deferred entry

We endeavour to make offers as quickly as possible, however, we are committed to the principle of equal consideration, which means that any application made to us through UCAS by the deadline of the 15th January has a chance of being considered for an offer. Because of this, we cannot make all our decisions straight away when they reach us, so we may not inform some applicants who applied as early as September of our decision until March. However, we do this because each application really matters to us and we want to make offers to those applicants who show the strongest merit and potential in their application.

English Language requirements

Please check requirements for your subject and level of study (www.durham.ac.uk/learningandteaching.handbook/1/3/3/)

Department Information

Sociology and Criminology

Overview

Criminology

Explore crime, deviance and criminal justice as social issues.

Criminology is concerned with understanding crime, deviance and criminal justice. Criminologists ask, for example, why it is that some people are more likely to be victims or perpetrators of crime than others; how crime can be effectively controlled and prevented; and even how we come to define particular activities as “criminal” or not in the first place.

Sociology

Develop a sophisticated understanding of societies and social issues. In broad terms, sociology seeks to understand the relationship between individual people and the wider cultural and institutional contexts within which they live. In doing so, it strives not only to make sense of social and cultural systems but also bring about transformative social change, drawing upon the systematic study of social issues to challenge inequalities and to inform the development of effective, evidence-based policy and practice.

- World Top 100 in the QS World University Subject Rankings for Social Policy and Administration 2019.

Staff

For a current list of staff, please see the Department of Sociology web pages.

Facilities

The library’s resources for the study of criminology are among the best in northern Britain, and college libraries also hold copies of some of the main textbooks. We make extensive use of duo (Durham’s online teaching resource), and undergraduates can enjoy the use of the resources room within the Department, which has additional published material and networked computer access.
