

Undergraduate programmes

Pre-application information 2025/26

Welcome message from our Head of School

Welcome to the School of Government and International Affairs (SGIA).

I hope you have an interesting and exciting day here in Durham – hopefully the first of many. My name is Christopher Finlay. I'm Professor of Political Theory here at SGIA and I'm also the current Head of School.

It's a very exciting time at SGIA as we continue the period of sustained growth in our research and teaching capacity that we have been engaging in over the past few years. This reflects a substantial investment by the University in our programmes, one that equips us to open them to a large cohort of talented students. Our academic staff are world leaders in research and teaching in Politics and International Relations and we offer a suite of undergraduate programmes that reflect this excellence and that make it available to students excited about what our discipline has to offer.

Our single honours programmes were recently reviewed to ensure that they continue to deliver a demanding, stimulating, and life-changing educational experience that takes you to the forefront of research in Politics and International Relations in one of the world's top departments. At SGIA you will study with world-leading specialists in Comparative Politics and Political Science, Political Philosophy and Political Thought, International Relations, and International Political Economy. And we have colleagues whose regional knowledge spans the globe.

As a student in SGIA, we will provide you with opportunities to develop the skills and experience to succeed in your future study or work. Durham University and SGIA have an enviable track-record of producing graduates who win places in the best postgraduate programmes and with the most demanding employers. Our unique blend of academic training coupled with the wider student experience provided by the partnerships between academic units like SGIA and the colleges is central to that success.

Join us, and together we will challenge and support you to develop the knowledge and skills to help you succeed in your life goals.

Yours sincerely,

Professor Christopher Finlay

89

QS World University
Rankings 2025

Times and Sunday
Times Good
University Guide 2025

5

6

Guardian Good
University Guide 2025

The Complete
University Guide 2025

7

10

Subjects in the World
Top 50

Our programmes – at a glance

BA (Hons) Politics L200

3 years full time

Typical A level offer - AAA

Typical BTEC offer - DDD

Typical IB offer - 37

BA (Hons) International Relations L250

3 years full time

Typical A level offer - AAA

Typical BTEC offer - DDD

Typical IB offer - 37

BA (Hons) Politics and International Relations L253

3 years full time

Typical A level offer -AAA

Typical BTEC offer - DDD

Typical IB offer - 37

Additional politics programmes available at Durham University

The following programmes are also available which enables students to take a number of our modules:

BA (Hons) Philosophy and Politics LV25

3 years full time

Typical A level offer - AAA

Typical BTEC offer - DDD

Typical IB offer - 37

BA (Hons) Economics and Politics LL12

3 years full time

Typical A level offer - A*AA

Typical BTEC offer - D*DD

Typical IB offer - 38

BA (Hons) Philosophy, Politics and Economics VL52

3 years full time

Typical A level offer - A*AA

Typical BTEC offer - D*DD

Typical IB offer - 38

Course tructure

Six modules per year

16 one-hour lectures per module*

Nine one-hour tutorials per module*

For every hour of teaching, students are expected to do around four hours of independent study

Relevant for first and second year modules only

BA (Hons) International Relations

The programme aims to give students a systematic understanding of the discipline of International Relations, including detailed knowledge of core issues within the field, drawing on theoretical and empirical material.

Such core issues include the dynamic nature of the international order, regional elements of the international system, the role of institutions, and the nature of policy and decision-making in international relations.

Students will acquire an appreciation of, and ability to engage with, current areas of contestation and debate, including those at the forefront of research, as well as gaining a wider understanding of key questions relating to research methods used in the field. They will be able, following the completion of their studies, to describe and comment upon current research and possess knowledge and skills to enable them to complete their own research, employing the appropriate techniques and analysis methods.

First year study:

Core modules:

- International Security, Interdependence and Organisation
- Perspectives of Political Economy
- Researching Politics and International Relations
- Introduction to International Relations

Plus two further modules from*:

- Democratic Political Systems
- Introduction to Political Theory
- Introduction to Comparative Politics
- One module from the Centre for Foreign Language Study, or
- One module offered from another department.

Second year study:

Core modules

- * Research Project

Plus one of:

- International Theory
- International Organisations

Plus four further modules from*:

- International Theory
- Politics and International Relations of East Asia
- Foundations of Western Political Thought
- International Organisations
- Sovereignty, State and Empire
- Analytical Politics
- Debates in Political Theory
- Class, Nation and Party in British Politics
- Middle East and the International System
- Gender and Politics
- Democracy, Conflict and American Society
- Capitalism: History and Theory
- One module from the Centre for Foreign Language Study, or
- One module offered from another department.

Third year study:

Core modules

- *Dissertation

Plus four further modules from*:

- Theories of Liberty
- China in Global Political Economy
- Democratic Practise in the US Campaigns
- Social and Political Philosophy
- Democracy and Discontent in the European Union
- Politics of Inequality
- Decolonising International Society
- Climate, Nature and the Global Economy
- The Culture Wars: Past, Present, Future
- Marx and Marxism
- Diasporas and Global Politics
- Advanced Topics in International Political Theory: The International Politics of the Everyday
- Advanced Readings in Political Economy
- Environmental Politics
- Are Voters Really Rational? The Political Economy of Political Behaviour and its Discontents
- One module from the Centre for Foreign Language Study, or
- One module offered from another department

All modules are indicative modules and are subject to change. (*Not all modules run every year)

BA (Hons) Politics

The programme aims to give students a systematic and rigorous understanding of key aspects of the discipline of Politics, enabling them to engage critically with the subject and its significance for the wider human activity.

Teaching is structured two streams: Comparative Politics and Political Theory. Student move from generalist courses in these areas in their early years to more specialised options which explore the diverse and dynamic politics of the contemporary world. Such areas include, but are not limited to, Comparative Political Development, European Politics, British Politics, Western Political Thought, Political Theory, and regional politics, such as the politics of East Asia and the Middle East.

Student will gain detailed knowledge, informed by the development at the forefront of academic enquiry and specific aspects of the subject. They will gain a wider understanding of key issues, such as the role of political institutions in different contexts, the justification of states and violence, the role of race, gender, and ethnicity in political behaviour, and liberty, through rigorously applying and combining theory and methods. This enables students to describe, analyse, and comment on current research and use the gained knowledge and skills to complete their own research, employing sophisticated techniques of analysis and enquiry.

First year study:

Core modules

- Democratic Political Systems
- Researching Politics and International Relations
- Introduction to Political Theory
- Introduction to Comparative Politics

Plus two further modules from*:

- International Security, Interdependence and Organisation
- Perspectives of Political Economy
- Introduction to International Relations
- One module from the Centre for Foreign Language Study, or
- One module offered from another department.

Second year study:

Core modules

- Research Project, plus one of
- Foundations of Western Political Thought, or
- Analytical Politics

Plus four further modules from*:

- International Theory
- Politics and International Relations of East Asia
- Foundations of Western Political Thought
- International Organisations
- Sovereignty, State and Empire
- Analytical Politics
- Debates in Political Theory
- Class, Nation and Party in British Politics
- Middle East and the International System
- Gender and Politics
- Democracy, Conflict and American Society
- Capitalism: History and Theory
- One module from the Centre for Foreign Language Study, or
- One module offered from another department.

Third year study:

Core modules

- Dissertation

Plus four further modules from*:

- Theories of Liberty
- China in Global Political Economy
- Democratic Practise in the US Campaigns
- Social and Political Philosophy
- Democracy and Discontent in the European Union
- Politics of Inequality
- Decolonising International Society
- Climate, Nature and the Global Economy
- The Culture Wars: Past, Present, Future
- Marx and Marxism
- Diasporas and Global Politics
- Advanced Topics in International Political Theory: The International Politics of the Everyday
- Advanced Readings in Political Economy
- Environmental Politics
- Are Voters Really Rational? The Political Economy of Political Behaviour and its Discontents
- One module from the Centre for Foreign Language Study, or
- One module offered from another department

All modules are indicative modules and are subject to change. (*Not all modules run every year)

BA (Hons) Politics and International Relations

The programme aims to give students a systematic and rigorous understanding of the disciplines of Politics and International Relations.

Teaching is structured around three main streams: Comparative Politics, International Relations, and Political Theory. Students move from introductory in each of these areas in their early years to more specialised options, enabling students focus on a specific sub-field or topic, analyse the politics and international relations of specific regions and countries, and engage theoretical examinations that help us make sense of a complex, inter-connected, and rapidly changing world. Students will gain an appreciation and a more nuanced understanding of, as well as the ability to engage with current issues and debates, including those at the forefront of current research and enquiry. Upon completion of their studies students will be able to describe and comment on current research, and possess knowledge and skills that enable them to complete their own research, employing appropriate techniques and analysis methods.

First year study:

Core modules:

- Researching Politics and International Relations
- Introduction to Comparative Politics
- Introduction to Political Theory
- Introduction to International Relations

Plus two further modules from*:

- Democratic Political Systems
- International Security, Interdependence and Organisation
- Perspectives of Political Economy
- One module from the Centre for Foreign Language Study, or
- One module offered from another department.

Second year study:

Core Modules:

- Research Project
- Foundations of Western Political Thought or Analytical Politics
- International Theory or International Organisation

Plus three further modules from*:(which can include the ones not chosen previously)

- International Theory
- Politics and International Relations of East Asia
- Foundations of Western Political Thought
- International Organisations
- Sovereignty, State and Empire
- Analytical Politics
- Debates in Political Theory
- Class, Nation and Party in British Politics
- Middle East and the International System
- Gender and Politics
- Democracy, Conflict and American Society
- Capitalism: History and Theory
- One module from the Centre for Foreign Language Study, or
- One module offered from another department.

Third year study:

Core Module:

- Dissertation

Plus four further modules from*:

- Theories of Liberty
- China in Global Political Economy
- Democratic Practise in the US Campaigns
- Social and Political Philosophy
- Democracy and Discontent in the European Union
- Politics of Inequality
- Decolonising International Society
- Climate, Nature and the Global Economy
- The Culture Wars: Past, Present, Future
- Marx and Marxism
- Diasporas and Global Politics
- Advanced Topics in International Political Theory: The International Politics of the Everyday
- Advanced Readings in Political Economy
- Environmental Politics
- Are Voters Really Rational? The Political Economy of Political Behaviour and its Discontents
- One module from the Centre for Foreign Language Study, or
- One module offered from another department

All modules are indicative modules and are subject to change. (*Not all modules run every year)

Additional politics programmes available at Durham University

Offered by Philosophy:

BA (Hons) Philosophy and Politics First year study:

Core modules

Three Philosophy modules and Introduction to Political Theory

And two of the following modules:

- Researching Politics and International Relations
- Introduction to Comparative Politics
- Introduction to International Relations
- Perspectives of Political Economy

Offered by Economics:

BA (Hons) Philosophy, Politics and Economics First year study:

Two of the following modules:

- Introduction to Political Theory
- Introduction to Comparative Politics
- Introduction to International Relations
- Researching Politics and International Relations
- Perspectives on Political Economy

Two modules from Economics and two modules from Philosophy

Offered by Economics:

BA (Hons) Economics and Politics First year study:

Three of the following modules:

- Researching Politics and International Relations
- Introduction to Political Theory
- Introduction to Comparative Politics
- Introduction to International Relations
- Perspectives of Political Economy

Three modules from Economics

All modules are indicative modules and are subject to change. (*Not all modules run every year)

If you want to attend a first-class university in a beautiful, historic setting with unparalleled student support services, choose Durham.

Year abroad opportunities

European partners

France

Universite de Lille
Sciences Po Institut d Etudes Politiques de Paris

Germany

Ruprecht Karls Universität Heidelberg
Universität Konstanz

Italy

LUISS - Luiss Libera Università Internazionale
degli Studi

Netherlands

Universiteit van Amsterdam

Spain

University of Granada
University of Salamanca

Sweden

Uppsala Universitet

Switzerland

University of Zurich

For comprehensive list please visit:

Erasmus, Exchange & Study Abroad :
Government and International Affairs - Durham
University

International/exchange partners

Australia

University of Western Australia
University of Melbourne

Canada

University of British Columbia
University of Calgary

Hong Kong

University of Hong Kong
Chinese University of Hong Kong (CUHK)

Japan

University of Tokyo

New Zealand

University of Otago

USA

Boston College
University of Notre Dame

Singapore

National University of Singapore

For comprehensive list please visit:

Erasmus, Exchange & Study Abroad : Partner
Universities - Durham University

Career options, employability and graduate studies

The Careers, Employability and Enterprise Centre works closely with the School of Government and International Affairs. The link Careers Adviser delivers presentations to each year group on topics relevant to that stage of their academic career. These cover career decision making, successful applications and interviews, and advice for those considering further study. The department also hosts a range of guest speakers from external organisations to expand our students' knowledge of their different career options.

Durham University School of Government and International Affairs graduates have an enviable record of employment and enter a wide range of career areas including business and finance, local and national government, armed forces, marketing and PR, media - newspaper and TV journalism, publishing, law, manufacturing industry, recruitment and teaching.

Our graduates are recruited by leading employers such as the House of Commons, Accenture, British Airways, Ernst and Young, British Telecom, Goldman Sachs, PwC, Royal Navy, House of Fraser, Aldi, Channel 4, HSBC, Teach First, Durham University, Black Rock and the Audit Commission. Specific roles our graduates have progressed into include business manager, press and publicity assistant, accountant, political assistant, retail manager, international financial analyst, Naval Officer, marketing executive, stock-broker, tax adviser and political researcher. So far as we know, only one Politics graduate from Durham has entered Parliament.

durham.ac.uk/departments/academic/school-government-international-affairs/undergraduate-study/employability

Of those students that left in 2021:

- 94% are in paid employment or study six months after graduation

Of those in employment:

- 78% are in high skilled employment - Average salary £29,500

durham.ac.uk/departments/academic/school-government-international-affairs/about-us/job-opportunities

Source: Destinations of Leavers from Higher Education (DLHE) survey of 2017/18 graduates.

Previous graduate career paths

- China Federation of Industrial Economics - International Liaison Officer
- Exeter University - Research Fellow
- International Organization for Migration - Associate to the Ombudsman
- Ministry of Foreign Affairs - Internship at the Dutch Ministry of Foreign Affairs
- Tunbridge Wells Council - Democratic Services Officer
- Breast Cancer Now - Public Affairs Intern

durham.ac.uk/careers/students/careerplanning/graduates

Placement year

A globally outstanding centre of teaching and research excellence, a collegiate community of extraordinary people, a unique and historic setting – Durham is a university like no other. With employers increasingly looking beyond qualifications and an emphasis on practical experience and transferable skills within the recruitment process, a Placement Year from Durham University could really help you stand out from the crowd.

Why do a placement year?

We strongly encourage undergraduate students to do a placement year as part of your degree if you feel it is the right option for you. Not only will it help you decide what you want to do when you graduate and potentially lead to graduate job offers, but research suggests that those who have completed a placement have a higher degree classification overall. You may choose to work in the UK or internationally and work in an organisation related to your degree or a completely different sector.

You will develop a number of transferable skills whilst completing the placement as well as sector specific experience and knowledge which will support you in future job applications upon graduation whether or not you choose to stay in your chosen industry or role.

- Future-proof your career. Many employers use the placement schemes to secure talent for their graduate schemes and many of our students enter final year with a graduate role secured.
- Networking. The connections made during your Placement Year, as well as the recruitment process, will help expand your network and enable you to secure roles in the future beyond graduation.
- Bring your subject to life. You will have the opportunity to apply the knowledge from your degree in a practical setting and for some decide whether you want to enter the job market or pursue a career in research.
- Finances. Placements will most likely be paid. On average a placement student earns between £15-£25k.

Students from this department are highly sought after by placement providers and we have students working in; regularly affairs, solicitor firms, public affairs consultancies, government social research and Think Tanks.

Student Placement Guide can be found here.

Requirements of a placement year

Once you have decided to undertake a placement year, you should book an appointment with your Faculty Placement Manager who will be supporting you through the pre-placement process. They can also advise you on searching strategies and how to secure an appropriate placement. Please note, it is up to the student not the department or University to secure a placement.

In general, the requirements are that:

- You must pass all Level 2 modules of your programme
- You must have secured an approved placement of no less than 40 weeks (made up from one long placement, or up to a maximum of three shorter opportunities)
- You must have attended a pre-placement briefing

Contact Details:

For further information on placement years, please contact your Faculty Placement Manager at: socialsciences.placements@durham.ac.uk

Masters Programmes at Durham University

A significant number of students progress onto higher level study following their degree. Some remain within their academic field of interest and pursue a taught or research Masters at Durham, London School of Economics, University College London, York, Sheffield and Oxford. Some progress on to PhD study with recent successes at Durham and Cambridge.

Others take a different route and pursue professional postgraduate programmes in law, IT, advertising and marketing, finance and teaching.

Here in SGIA we currently offer the following Masters degree programmes:

- MA Politics and International Relations (Political Theory)
- MA International Relations
- MA International Relations (East Asia)
- MA Politics and International Relations of the Middle East
- MSc Conflict Prevention and Peacebuilding
- MSc Defence, Development and Diplomacy
- MSc Public Policy

Taught Courses - Durham University.

A Students' Guide

A prospectus or brochure often contains a great deal of detailed information, but experience suggests that prospective students want clear answers to direct questions. Detailed information about courses and degrees is available from the department but the questions that follow are the sort most commonly asked. If your concerns are not addressed here, please write to us and we will try to answer them.

Q. Where is Durham and what is it like?

Durham is an historic, cathedral city designated as a World Heritage Site and located in the north-east of England. It is easily reached by rail, road and air. Its Cathedral is one of the finest buildings in Europe and the city provides an attractive and safe environment for students. The city possesses a range of entertainment.

Q. How will I be assessed?

Assessment methods vary according to the precise degree programme and to specific modules chosen, but in most cases there are a mixture of examinations, group projects, assessed essays, and a dissertation in your final year. You will normally be assessed during or at the end of the year in which you take a module.

Q. Where do Durham students come from?

Our students come from all parts of the UK and around the world. We particularly welcome overseas students with good spoken and written English; we determine qualifications on an individual basis; our International Office can provide further guidance:

durham.ac.uk/study/ug/apply/international

We also welcome applications from mature students, who are 21 and over, and consider qualifications on an individual basis; we look for strong evidence of promise and genuine interest in relevant areas of study.

Q. What happens to my UCAS form?

When your form arrives in Durham, it is sent electronically to the central Admissions team for grading. If an offer is to be made, the form is then considered by the College Office who will allocate your College/Society, if you have stated an open preference, a college will be allocated to you automatically by Central Admissions. You will know the result of your application within the time limit set by UCAS.

Q. Do you consider deferred entry applications?

SGIA is happy for students to apply for deferred entry, but if you decide to have a 'gap year', you should make good use of that time, working, travelling or widening your experience in some other worthwhile way and you need to explain your plans, briefly, in your UCAS application.

Q. How will I be supported?

The University operates an Academic Adviser system. An Academic Adviser is a member of staff from your degree programme, who will be responsible for providing you with academic support and guidance throughout your undergraduate programme of study. This support may include the provision of feedback and advice on your overall academic performance and progress, and guidance on study choices.

The Academic Adviser may be a first point of communication should you wish to talk about a variety of other issues, for example illness, family problems and career possibilities. Where students raise issues that are pastoral in nature, the Academic Adviser will signpost their advisee to their College Senior Tutor or Student Support Officer, and if appropriate, any relevant specialist student support service.

Q. Are there opportunities for a Placement Year as part of my degree?

All Undergraduate programmes in the department allow you to take a Placement Year as part of your degree. You cannot combine a study abroad year and placement year but you are able to undertake a work based placement year in the UK or internationally and will do so between your 2nd and 3rd year, extending your degree to 4 years in length. It is up to you to secure a suitable placement year which will be approved by the department and the University however there is lots of support to help you find a role.

Contact

School of Government and International Affairs
The Al-Qasimi Building
Elvet Hill Road
Durham
DH1 3TU

T: +44 (0)191 3345656
E: sgia.education@durham.ac.uk

Admission related queries

Recruitment and Admissions
Durham University
Mountjoy Centre
Stockton Road
Durham
DH1 3LE

T: +44 (0)191 334 1000
W: durham.ac.uk/study/ug/apply

durham.ac.uk/departments/academic/school-government-international-affairs

Durham University and Durham University logo are registered Trade Marks of the University of Durham. Unless otherwise stated, all material in this publication is copyright of the University of Durham. The University makes every effort to ensure that the information contained here is accurate. This publication is intended as a general guide to University of Durham's facilities and form no part of any contract between you and the University. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system or transmitted in any form, or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording or otherwise, without the permission of the University. Please note that the University's website is the most up to date source of information and we strongly recommend that you always visit the website before making any commitments.