Have we become acclimatised to greater inequality?

Monday 11th January 2016, 09:30-16:45
National Science Learning Centre University of York, Heslington, York, YO10 5DD

Programme

09:30-09:45 – Coffee
09:45 -10:00-Introduction
10:15-11:30

Workshop one:
Stephen Crossley (Durham University) ‘More of a shove than a nudge? “Troubled families”, health and the 'remasculinisation of the state'

Workshop two:
Robert MacDonald (Teesside University) ‘The Dog that Didn't Bark: Policy Ignorance and the Low-Pay, No-Pay Cycle’

11:45-12:45-Buffet lunch and networking
13:00-14:15-Plenary presentation: Have we become acclimatised to greater inequality?

Danny Dorling (Halford Mackinder Professor of Geography, University of Oxford) & Kate Pickett (Professor of Epidemiology, University of York; co-author of The Spirit Level)

14:30-15:45

Workshop one:
Jonathan Bradshaw (Professor of Social Policy, University of York), ‘Child poverty and child health’

Workshop two:
Ruth Patrick (University of Leeds) ‘Living with inequality: contrasting policy narratives with the lived experiences of welfare reform’

16:00-16:45 – wrap up, next steps (plenary room, with coffee)

To register please visit: https://www.dur.ac.uk/conference.booking/details/?id=542 (£45 registration, £25 for early career and postgraduates)

ESRC Seminar Series: Revitalising the Health Equity Agenda https://www.dur.ac.uk/sass/research/healthequity